

This season was an amazeballs lip spectacular: the look was clean, bare skin and non-fussy-mussy hair, juxtaposed with a bang against bright, matte lips that packed a punch at Prabal Gurung, Altuzarra, Rag & Bone, Mary Katrantzou and House of Holland. Every bit brand spankingly fresh. We totally dig it.

Charlotte Tilbury's lip-do at Prabal Gurung was the smash hit of NYFW: acidic orange rocks.

Val Garland calls her diffused pink lip at Mary Katrantzou a "super fab, fresh skin and matte mouth finish".

"It's my first-ever lip adventure," says Gucci Westman of the no-fuss full-on lip stain at Rag & Bone.

Tom Pecheux's flashbang number at Altuzarra: stripped-back, not-so-classic red matted with loose pigment.

Tilbury's ott, Irving Penn-inspired pouts at Prabal Gurung: overdraw the outside with lip pencil for faux voluptuousness and fill in with a matte shade.

Satin Lip Pencil in Descano, Nars; Lipstick in Mélodieuse, Chanel

At House of Holland Lucia Pica slathered on a bespoke five-shade blend of raspberry-red.

Spring hair rules: go totally mod, sans retro drama

The blow-out is out according to James Pecis, who ironed naturally tousled, laid-back straight locks, sans volume at the roots—he's calling it clean but chic. Sign us up.

Also spotted at: Donna Karan, Ralph Lauren, Miu Miu. Oleo Relax Serum, Kérastase

Guido Palau set the bar with bed-head, slightly 'broken', loose ponytails that swooped across the forehead. Relaxed, subversive, wispy and finger raked—anything-but perfection. Also spotted at: Victoria Beckham, Derek Lam, Rodarte, Quick Tease 15, Redken

The updo of the season: Orlando Pita's boyish, unpolished, frothy twists, dishevelled into a blasé cool hot mess. The key is to keep it subdued: no blowing, more mussing up.

Also spotted at: Michael Kors, Rochas, Giambattista Valli. Abundantly Bouncy Volumising Mousse, Percy & Reed

THE WORLD ACCORDING TO PAT MCGRATH

The haute maquillage master with the zsa-zsa touch always shatters expectations, breaks all barriers and sets the killer look of the season. She's done Dior for a decade, Dolce & Gabbana for 13 years, Versace for... eternity (gasp)—and her dominion shows no signs of abating this season. Let the decadence rip...

AT GIVENCHY:
What we came up with is insane—starting with the base, we layered paint, glitter, crystals secured with eyelash glue, and then gauze and plastic.

VERSACE: SWEET CHILD

Donatella Versace's pared down season staple, with Axl Rose as muse: rock-chic ebony eyeliner with precisely one and a half faux eyelashes. Pat says: "Donatella was obsessed with top and bottom lashes."

GIVENCHY: MASKED MADAMES

1,500 crystals in five colours—the bijoux sparkly masks at Givenchy was one of those 'McGrath' moments that sent us into a tizzy. Pat says: "It is amazing. We wanted to let the mind travel. We were thinking of the future, of Africa, and we wanted it to be exquisitely jewelled."

DIOR: GILDED

McGrath's jumbo glitter gold brocade brows made us adore Dior. Pat says: "These eyebrows are like jewelry. Working with the natural brow shapes, we applied glue in many layers to create a brocade texture."

GUCCİ: COPPERTONE LIDS

A glamorous athletic smoulder—glimmering statement eyes with a flash of copper at the centre of the lid. Pat says: "She [Prada Giannini] wanted something athletic but still made up. Sporty, cool, luxurious—but still sexy."

DOLCE & GABBANA: BRONZE GODDESSES

Sublime overload: skin aflash with three shades of blusher and lips stained a Sicilian pink. Pat says: "Even though it's soft, romantic, and cherubic, it's still Sophia Loren—but this time it's sunny and hot."

Dress: Fusion Mono in Orange; Dior, Instant Liner, Clarins; Axl Rose Illuminator, Nars

Evokes Stefano and Domenico's enduring love affair with Sophia Loren.

COME UNDONE

Gone are the vampy lips and smokey eyes of seasons past: this spring, the look du jour is RAW and YOUNG—served up ultra-fresh and stunningly clean. "Minimal, minimal-minimal of the minimal is what we are doing," declared Tom Pecheux, who sent Karlie Kloss strutting makeup-less down the runway at Balmain. Rather than the usual makeup-slathering fest backstage, the makeup maestro had a little skincare facial TLC in store for the models ("We transformed the makeup room into a spa," laughs Tom), fluffing on bits of powder where needed. "There are three pressure points we are hitting: the eyes, inner corners, and the brow bone," he added. "The only fantasy is we're curling the lashes and brushing the eyebrows." Take a cue—this is your resplendently dewy, undressed, no-makeup makeup look for the season.

Eyelash Curler, Tarte; Sheer Contour, Burberry

Also spotted: Golden Girls at Donna Karon; Ruffled Face at Isabel Marant

The new shape trend for nails: They're squareletto," says nail guru Sophy Robson. "They're rounded with the tip cut off."

MONIQUE LHULLIER

Nail Lacquer in Pink Ribbon, Butter London

CHANEL
Le Vernis in Black Satin, Chanel

3.1 PHILIP LIM
Pierre Hardy Nail Polish
Pairs in Easy Walking, NARS

NAILING IT

Nails were decked out in either pale, alabaster shades or jet-black hues. Bag these nail polishes used on the models.

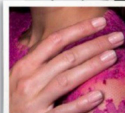

PROENZA SCHOULER
Nail Polish in Delicate, MAC

CHRISTIAN DIOR
Vernis in Ivoire, Dior

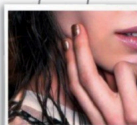

NANETTE LEPORE
Nail Lacquer in Alpine Snow, OPI

CHANEL

MONIQUE

PHILIP LIM

PROENZA

DIOR

NANETTE

METALLICA

A new obsession with everything golden and gleaming.

DIOR Eyeshadow

JASON FRED GILDA Clips

NICOLE MITTER Brushes

DRIES VAN NOTEN Brushes

CHANEL

REBELS WITH A CAUSE

No he di'nt! Makeup man Peter Philips was at it again at Chanel - read on.

PAINTED LADIES

"It's a painting," quips makeup artist Peter Philips on the jaw-dropping, finger-painting-esque eye makeup at Chanel. Wielding a flat eyeshadow brush, Philips held nothing back: exaggerated pitch-black eyebrows and chunky, artful slashes of eyeliner framed (purposefully) splattered jolts of contrasting shades. The funky-slash-grungy, totally OTT, punky shiznit of SS14. We wouldn't expect anything less.

Illusion D'Ombre in Apparition, Le Volume De Chanel Mascara in Black, Ligne Graphique de Chanel in Noir, Le Crayon Yeux in Black, Stylo Yeux Waterproof in Noir, Rouge Coco Baume, Chanel

"It started as a '60s eyeliner look and became bigger and bigger and bigger because it created an attitude and a cold look in the eyes."

CROWNING GLORY

Make like Alexa Chung and channel these totally wearable runway hair accessories:

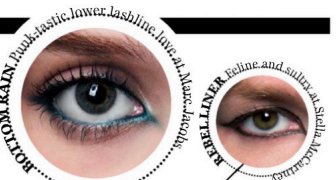

WITH THE BAND VERA WANG

BOW WOW BALENCIAGA

FLOWER POWER ZAC POSEN

GO GRAPHIC

Totally teenage-rebel, not at all retro punk noir eyeliner manifestations: heavy, striking and angst.

MADASS INK chunky, geometric outlines

MATTHEW chunky, geometric outlines

MATTHEW chunky, geometric outlines